BACKGROUND

Toronto's intercity bus terminal has operated from Bay and Dundas Streets since its original opening in 1931. Since the mid-1970's, there have been numerous planning studies conducted regarding the preferred location of the bus terminal from the private carriers', the City of Toronto's and Metrolinx's perspectives.

DISCUSSION

Options for the future of GO Transit's bus operations at Union Station that include the presence of the intercity bus companies are presently under study.

JUSTIFICATION

TTC is participating with Metrolinx to determine the location and feasibility of a new permanent intercity bus terminal.
